Roberto Danubio 7 Dan JKF Wadokai

has completely separated himself from sports karate. He come to understand that in this martial art it is not about physical performance. The goal of budo is to search for the perfection of the self and he fully believes this is no easy task.

Mastering a tzuki or some other technique is by far a much simpler task. But regardless of how many people view Karate as a sport, Karate is and remains a martial art that can give a person so much more than just athletic success.
